

Article - Family Law

[\[Previous\]](#)[\[Next\]](#)

§5–1039.

- (a) If the court finds that the alleged father is not the father, the court may:
 - (1) retain jurisdiction; and
 - (2) on its own motion or otherwise, take any further proceeding that the court considers just and proper and in the best interests of the child.
- (b) Under this section, the court may:
 - (1) enter an appropriate order against the mother for the support of the child;
 - (2) allow the impleader or joinder of any other alleged father; or
 - (3) consider any other matter that may be in the best interests of the child.

[\[Previous\]](#)[\[Next\]](#)